The weeklong celebration for Homecoming at the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff (UAPB) will begin Oct. 30 according to Dr. Charles Colen, Homecoming Committee chairperson.

The theme for this year is "Pride in the Pride." Activities for the week include events for students as well as alumni and their families.

On Sun., Oct. 30, the Lady Lions soccer team will host a game against Jackson State University at 1:00 p.m. That evening the Student Government Association (SGA) will sponsor a gospel concert at 6:00 p.m. in the John McLinn Ross auditorium of the Hathaway-Howard Fine Arts Center. Both events are free and open to the public.

A Homecoming Spirit Kick-off will be held Mon., Oct. 31 at 12:00 p.m. in the Shirley Jacob Lions Den located in the L.A. Davis, Sr. Student Union. Senior Stunt Night will be held at 7 p.m. in the John McLinn Ross auditorium of the Hathaway-Howard Fine Arts Center. Admission to Senior Stunt Night is $4 for general admission and $3 with a canned good.

On Tues., Nov. 1, at 10:30 a.m., the Black & Gold Pride Assembly will be held in the HPER Complex. Student organizations and individuals will compete for the "best show" with UAPB spirit.

On Wed., Nov. 2 "Jazz in the Café" will be held in the L.A. Davis, Sr. Student Union Cafeteria. The cost is $5.50 for non-meal plan diners. All alumni, students, family and friends are invited to attend this SGA sponsored event.

Continuing with Wed., Jammie Robbins will officially be crowned Miss University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff (UAPB) during the Coronation Ceremony to be held at 6:30 p.m., in the HPER Complex. The Coronation Ball will begin immediately after the ceremony. Formal attire will be enforced.

For alumni, the Homecoming Alumni Scholarship Golf Tournament will be held Thurs., Nov. 3, at 8:30 a.m., at Harbor Oaks Golf Course in Pine Bluff Regional Park.

That afternoon, all are invited to the Community Pep Rally sponsored by Wal-Mart. This free, public event will be held from 1:30 pm - 5:00 pm on the Wal-Mart Supercenter parking lot located 5501 S. Olive street.

A bonfire will follow that evening at 10 p.m. on the HPER Complex parking lot following the Men's Basketball game against Philander Smith College at 7 pm at the Pine Bluff Convention Center. Admission to the basketball game is free for UAPB students with ID and $5 for general admission.

On Fri., Nov. 4 the Annual Alumni Assembly will be held at 10 a.m. in the Clemmons Arena of the HPER Complex. An Alumni Awards Luncheon will be held thereafter at PJ's Event Center. Tickets for the luncheon are $30 and can be purchased online at www.uapb-alumni.org or by calling (870)536-2309.

The Student Government Association (SGA) will sponsor a Greek Show that evening in the HPER Complex. Doors open at 6 p.m.

An Alumni Dinner Banquet will also be held that evening at 7:00 p.m. in the Pine Bluff Convention Center Ballroom. Tickets to this National Alumni Association sponsored event can be purchased online at www.uapb-alumni.org or by calling (870)536-2309.

On the day of the game, Sat., Nov. 5, the Annual Homecoming Parade will begin at 10:00 a.m. in Downtown Pine Bluff.

Pre-game activities will begin at 12:30 p.m. in the Golden Lion Stadium. Kick off time is 2:30 p.m. when the Golden Lions will face the Hornets of Alabama State University.

After the game, the UAPB Band Marching Festival will be held at 7 p.m. in the HPER Complex Arena.

Arkansas Goes Pink for Cancer

By Jonathon Smith
The Arkansasawyer Staff Writer

Ark., Gov. Mike Beebe declared Oct. 7, Go Pink for the Cure day.

Go Pink for the Cure purpose was to bring awareness to breast cancer.

In 2011, there is estimated to be 230,480 new cases of invasive breast cancer among women in the United States. There will be an estimated 40,000 deaths to occur due to breast cancer, cited by Susan G. Komen Foundation. The mortality rate is 39% higher than any other race in the United States, (Susan G. Komen Foundation).

Breast Cancer: African-Americans are More at Risk

By Rachel Lloyd
The Arkansasawyer Staff Writer

Oct. is National Breast Cancer Awareness month. This month's edition of The Arkansasawyer is dedicated to women who have overcome, and are currently fighting breast cancer.

Breast cancer is the second leading cause of death for women ages 40 to 55. It develops at a faster rate in African American women under the age of 45. A study about breast cancer tumors found in African American women and white women, conducted by the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in 2004, revealed that breast cancer tumors in young African American women were more aggressive and grew at a more vigorous rate than those found in white women, young and old.

Dr. Peggy Porter, lead author of the study, said "One of the important conclusions from this study is that even when you correct for stage - that is, look at tumors of the same stage from white women and African American women - tumors from the African-American women tend to have features characteristic of more aggressive and rapidly growing cancers."

"If their tumors tend to grow more quickly, this may help to explain why their cancers are being diagnosed at later stages, which can lead to poorer outcomes."

Following are steps women for early breast cancer detection. Some of these steps are:

- Practice monthly breast self-examinations (BSE) starting at age 20.

- Have a clinical breast examination, done by their physician, at least once a year.

- Have at least one mammogram completed, between the ages of 30 and 35.

- Have a mammogram completed every one to two years until age of 50.

- After 50, African American women should have an annual mammogram. *(www.justbreastcancer.com) deaths to occur due to breast cancer, cited by Susan G. Komen Foundation.

According to the American Cancer Society, the mortality (death) rate of women with breast cancer is 22.8 deaths per 100,000 people in the U.S. Ark. has one of the lowest rates of invasive breast cancer at 111 women per 100,000 women.

Among the African-American race, there communities showed support for Go Pink for the Cure, by wearing pink clothing.

Sat., Oct. 22, the Ark. Race for the Cure will take place in downtown Little Rock.

Facebook Remains Free

By Rachel Lloyd
The Arkansasawyer Staff Writer

Facebook is one of the most popular social networking services since its launch in 2004. It has become more popular than MySpace and other social media networks, with more than 800 million active users.

One of Facebook's perks is that it is free to users. However, recent rumors surfaced that Facebook will soon charge users to access and maintain their accounts.

According to Snopes.com, a website dedicated to verifying or discharging rumors, reports of Facebook fees are false and originated from a malware attack.

Snopes.com also pointed out similar rumors have circulated over the summer and others date back as far as Dec., 2009. These false claims have surfaced as a result of new changes to Facebook, and its additional features.

In an effort to silence the rumors, Facebook has declared on its official page that "it's free and it always will be."

"Productivity" discussed at Fall Convocation

By Lauren Stewart
The Arkansawyer Staff Writer

Tues., Sept. 20, Dr. Lawrence A. Davis, Jr., chancellor of the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff, stressed the need to raise the academic standards, at the fall convocation.

The Chancellor's theme for this year's fall convocation was "Productivity: Thrive or Expire, Imperatives for UAPB."

During his address, Dr. Davis recognized the accomplishments of the university, and informed the Golden Lion family of plans for the school year.

Chancellor Davis addressed the issue of students staying school longer due to not meeting academic requirements, and running out of financial assistance. He urged student to borrow money wisely.

Changing his focus from student spending habits to those of the university, Dr. Davis talked of plans of transparency. "People want to know where the funds are going."

Dr. Davis caught the audience's attention when he whispered $7 million, the amount of money owed by students to the university.

He made it very clear; instructors need to give students what they pay for. If it wasn't for students, instructors wouldn't have jobs.

"The students are our customers!"

In closing, Davis tied last year's theme to the current theme, "We must assume a sense of urgency."

"Chancellor Davis made very good points and was very straight forward with addressing the issues of this university. I believed that we, as students, should try to work harder on our academics so that we can achieve excellence," said Myeshia Parker, a junior Biology Pre-Pharmacy major.

University Represented at "105 Voices of History"

By Brittney McBride
The Arkansawyer Staff Writer

Students from the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff, along with representatives from other Historically Black Colleges and Universities participated in the fourth annual "105 Voices of History".

This event is a celebration of National HBCU week, held annually in Sept., in Washington, D.C.

UAPB has been a part of the "105 Voices of History" since its beginning.

Musical directors from participating institutions selected students to represent their school. Dr. Michael Bates and Dr. Heidi Gordon chose Janitha Lawson, Dennis Henry, and Jade McCracken to represent UAPB.

Going to Paris, France - one of the fashion capitals of the world - is an experience on its own. Brittany Alexander, junior marketing major at the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff (UAPB) will get to do just that while as a participant in the Design Management program at Parsons School of Art and Design, one of the top fashion and design schools in the world.

The St. Louis, Missouri native says the program is the perfect beginning to her quest to use her marketing degree in the fashion industry. As a visiting student in spring 2012, Brittany will take 15 credit hours and live in Paris from January until May. She aspires to become Vice President of Marketing or a Brand Manager for a couture fashion house

as well as ultimately opening her own marketing firm that works as a mentoring program for teens that desire to work in the fashion industry.

"Being in the program at Parsons for a semester will equip me with the knowledge and experience to work in an industry I adore," says Brittany. "The program will extend on the marketing knowledge I have already acquired throughout college and educate me in managing design and fashion products."

She is currently raising funds to finance her trip at <http://www.indiegogo.com/dreamingofparis>.

Troy Davis: Unjust Justice

Before September 21, I had no idea that there was a man named Troy Davis. I did not have any knowledge of his case, nor that it would eventually impact my life the way it did. That all changed when Troy Davis was trending worldwide on Twitter.

People were hash tagging #TroyDavis, tweeting personal comments about him. Some of my followers made strong statements. I wanted to indulge, but I had no opinion.

Research was the step I took to figure out what I believed: that Troy Davis, an innocent man, was murdered.

Googling Davis, a list of articles appeared in a matter of seconds. Most of them had similar facts. According to USA Today.com, Davis was convicted on August 31, 1991, of killing an off-duty Savannah, GA. police officer.

In his murder trial, witnesses reported that they saw Davis shoot the officer. However, there was no physical evidence linking him to the murder. Investigators could not locate a murder weapon.

His original execution was scheduled for July 17, 2007. With appeals initiated by various people and groups, including Harry Belafonte and the European Parliament, his death was delayed. There were two more delays on his execution in 2008.

Since Davis' conviction, testimonies of witnesses have changed.

Some retracted their statements. It is believed police used force, or fear to coherence testimony.

According to amnesty-usa.org, nine witnesses believed that a different man committed the murder all together.

His case was based off of testimonies only. Without solid evidence,

Marian Smith
Editor-in-Chief

Davis should have been a free man. That is not how life played out.

The U.S. Supreme Court denied Davis' appeal. According to the Atlanta Journal-Constitution, Davis' final execution date was scheduled for Sept. 21, 2011, by the Georgia Department of Corrections. Groups circulated petitions trying to save his life. More than 600,000 signatures were gathered. Those names did not mean anything to the Georgia Board of Pardon and Paroles. They denied Davis clemency.

The petitioners were not the only ones convinced that Davis was innocent; he was as well. Huffingtonpost.com said Davis spoke directly to the brother and son of the fallen officer, "All I can ask is that you look deep into this case so that you can really find the truth."

It took courage for Davis to continue to affirm his innocence, while staring death in the face.

Inmates with hard evidence against them are still sitting on death row. For example, Samuel David Crowe was convicted of beating the owner of a store to death. There was enough evidence to prove his guilt. The only thing that set him apart from Davis, was he confessed to committing the crime.

If Davis confessed to the crime, would he still be alive?

It is evident, had Davis been of a different race, his chances of being alive would be greater. According to the Death Penalty Information Center, only 15 white defendants have been killed for murdering black people. In comparison, 246 African-Americans have been executed for killing whites.

Did the death of Troy Davis bring shame to the judicial system and to all of America that day?

His last words, "for those about to take my life, God have mercy on your souls. May God bless your souls," should ring in our ears forever.

#SpeakOut

Topic: The demise of Troy Davis

"It's ridiculous how you have people like Casey Anthony roaming the streets with all kinds of evidence, and Troy Davis is sentenced to death with none. Michael Vick goes to jail over a dog. Anthony fails to report her missing child and gets away. What is the Judicial System doing?"

-Shandrea Middlebrook

Shandrea Middlebrook

"It is very upsetting to see our country not stand by its own. I feel the execution of Troy Davis was very unfair to spend all that time in prison. To be convicted of a crime that they have no evidence for is an embarrassment to our country. I feel that they were afraid to release him due to the fact that they would have to reimburse him for the time served. There is no justice and I'm sure there is no peace for his family."

-Derrick Shelton
Junior, Psychology

Derrick Shelton

"I think that the execution of Troy Davis was very wrong. There was not enough evidence to execute him and I believe this was a huge mistake from our judicial system. I believe that this is a racial issue and that America has killed an innocent man."

-Nicole Louis
Sophmore, Mass Comm.

Nicole Louis

"I feel that it wasn't right. Like all the other cases they have things to prove what happen. On this case, they just took that he did it just because he was a black male. I believed it to be unjust, or that we are not judged the same."

Unkhained Radio: Bobbin' ya head to a positive beat!

By Ebony Neal
Arkansawyer Staff Writer

If you haven't heard, this IS your personal FYI: the University of Arkansas at Pine Bluff's very own 89.7 KUAP, has a new radio program, Unkhained Radio.

A Christian Radio outlet appealing to Hip Hop fanatics, Unkhained Radio airs Sun. nights from 10 p.m. to 12 a.m. Don't get it twisted, every lover of Hip Hop will most definitely feel the Christian flow of Unkhained radio boom-in' through ya speakers!

"Unkhained radio keeps you going for two hours with the latest and the greatest", says co-host Brennon Keys. "It gives you that alternative vibe, if that's your style, as well as Christian Hip Hop. "It is the same style as [mainstream] Hip Hop, but with a positive message."

"Lil Wayne is very talented and intelligent. He just chooses to make music that doesn't wholly reflect his intelligence. His music is not beneficial to the masses. Bizzle (a well-known Christian Hip Hop artist), raps about life from a Christian perspective, but it still has to do with REAL life. We need his positivity. People marvel at Lil Wayne but Bizzle's lyrics will help you the most in life," said Keys.

Brennon was also asked why students should listen to Unkhained Radio on 89.7 KUAP on Sunday nights. "It's something new and fresh; not the same ol' same ol'. You're gonna get a message. You can still bob your head and dance but it's [more] beneficial."

DJ Barnhill, another co-host said the most beneficial aspect of working on the show has been, "Developing self-worth and being a voice for the university from the Christian aspect."

He feels the program is vital to the university. "It's [simply] spreading the gospel through music."

DJ's favorite Christian hip hop artist is J-Tracks, Justin Ingram, the 3rd co-host of the show. "He's one of the deepest Christian rappers I've ever met. He's more of an image of God."

So if you didn't know, NOW YOU KNOW! Unkhained Radio, the most live Christian hip hop show in Southeast Ark., airs on Sun. night's from 10 p.m. to 12 a.m.

You THINK you had knowledge from those other artist; it's time to gain some wisdom!
